Abstract: The paper deals with the specific syntactic features of Russian and Bulgarian business letters in a contrastive perspective. Business letters are viewed as a kind of epistolary text. On the syntactic level they are studied as a type of written speech – epistolary monologue with elements of a dialogue. The most frequently used phrases in Russian and Bulgarian letters are complex sentences. The author explores the choice of syntactic devices that are realisations of the stylistic specifics of business letters in Bulgarian and Russian.

Keywords: business letters, syntax, epistolary texts, simple sentences, complex sentences, Russian language, Bulgarian language
